

January 1830, Major Ridge, (dressed in buckskins, red war paint and a buffalo headdress), led a party of 30 young Cherokee braves to the most southern part of Cherokee lands located in Georgia.

This fierce looking party destroyed an illegal white settlement and “evicted” , without injury, 18 white families.

EVICTION, CHEROKEE STYLE $1,200.00

24” x 36” black frame with a double black matt framing an original gouache’ painting on black matt board. The “flat” style painting was done using airbrush and dry brush techniques.
